The Enchanter: Nabokov and Happiness Sep 29 2022

Discovering happiness in reading the work of an extraordinary writer. The protagonist of Vladimir Nabokov's The Gift playfully dreamed of writing "A Practical Handbook: How to Be Happy." Now, Nabokov's own creative reader Lila Azam Zanganeh lends life to this vision with sly sophistication and ebullient charm, as she shares the delirious joy to be found in reading the masterpieces of "the great writer of happiness." Plunging into the enchanted and luminous worlds of Speak, Memory; Ada, or Ardor; and the infamous Lolita, Azam Zanganeh seeks out the Nabokovian experience of time, memory, sexual passion, nature, loss, love in all its forms, and language in all its allusions. She explores Nabokov's geography—from his Russian childhood to the landscapes of "his" America—suffers encounters with his beloved "nature," hallucinates an interview with the master, and seeks the "crunch of happiness" in his singular vocabulary. This beautifully

I Don't Want to Talk About It Jul 16 2021 Sometimes it takes more than words ... Winter Gregory and her twin sister Daisy live oceans apart but they still have the twin thing going on. Daisy is Winter's port in the storm, the first person she calls when things go wrong ... And things are wrong. Winter has traveled to a remote Yorkshire village to write her new book, and to escape her ex-boyfriend Dan Bekener. Dan never liked her reliance on Daisy and made her choose but Winter's twin will always be her first choice. She soon finds herself immersed in village life after meeting the troubled Hill family; horse-loving eight-year-old Scarlet and damaged, yet temptingly gorgeous, Alex. The distraction is welcome and, when Winter needs to talk, Daisy is always there. But Dan can't stay away and remains intent on driving the sisters apart because Dan knows something about Daisy ...

Galento the Great Apr 24 2022 Galento the Great is the gripping biography of Tony "Two-Ton" Galento, the boxer who once fought Joe Louis—considered one of the greatest heavyweight boxers of all time—for the heavyweight title. It was written by Joseph G. Donovan in 1939, the same year Galento challenged Louis for the title. Domenico Antonio Galento (1910-1979) was an American heavyweight boxer, nicknamed "Two-Ton" for his reasoning to his manager for being nearly late to one of his fights: "I had two tons of ice to deliver on my way here." Galento was one of the most colorful fighters in the history of the sport. He wrestled an octopus, and boxed a kangaroo as publicity stunts for his fights.

"THIS is an authorized, authentic and unvarnished story of my life and battles. The author has known me for 13 years and he, if anyone, knows the facts and figures, better than myself. While he has scratched my back a bit with his facile pen, both as Sports Editor and columnist of the Newark, N. J. Morning Ledger and as the author of my fighting career, I like it from page to page. Joe Donovan has as much punch in this story as I have in my left hook in the ring. And that is something."—Tony Galento

My Footprint Feb 20 2022 Marie Dicker Haas knew how to make friends and keep them—and being connected to others was what she treasured most. In this memoir, her spirit shines through, as do her philosophies on life, which she developed over more than 90 years before her death in 2017. From her formative days growing up on Staten Island, New York, to her years at Cornell University, through the World War II years, and on to life as it unfolded, she writes with a thoughtful, creative style. She writes courageously of her loves, including the death of Sammy Greenwald during World War II, which she writes “affected me more profoundly than any other event I had experienced until that time.” He had been born next door, and he’d always been in her life. Years later, Marie eloped with a concert violinist who

'Grossly Material Things' May 26 2022 In A Room of One's Own, Virginia Woolf described fictions as 'grossly material things', rooted in their physical and economic contexts. This book takes Woolf's brief hint as its starting point, asking who made the books of the English Renaissance, and what the material circumstances were in which they did so. It charts a new history of making and use, recovering the ways in which women shaped and altered the books of this crucial period, as co-authors, editors, translators, patrons, printers, booksellers, and readers. Drawing on evidence from a wide range of sources, including court records, letters, diaries, medical texts, and the books themselves, 'Grossly Material Things' moves between the realms of manuscript and print, and tells the stories of literary, political, and religious texts from broadside ballads to plays, monstrous birth pamphlets to editions of the Bible. In uncovering the neglected history of women's textual labours, and the places and spaces in which women went about the business of making, Helen Smith offers a new perspective on the history of books and reading. Where Woolf believed that Shakespeare's sister, had she existed, would have had no opportunity to pursue a literary career, 'Grossly Material Things' paints a compelling picture of Judith Shakespeare's varied job prospects, and promises to reshape our understanding of gendered authorship in the English

The Song of Love Jan 22 2022 Welcome to more Regency fun and frolic in the romantic, bestselling Book of Love series. Now Violet Farthingale must put The Book of Love to the test to capture Romulus Brayden's heart. What makes a man fall in love? Violet Farthingale is desperate to know because she has just been caught in Captain Romulus Brayden's home with her gown unlaced and his hands too far up her legs to explain away. It was an innocent misunderstanding, of course. She was attacked by bees and he came to her rescue. No one seems to care that nothing happened. She is now forced to marry this handsome stranger. Everyone knows Farthingales only marry for love, so how does she make this big and brawny Royal Navy captain fall in love with her? And how will she fall in love with him in under a week? Romulus Brayden has always loved the sea, and now it seems he'll have to learn to love Violet Farthingale, because she is going to be his wife. Honor demands it. After all, he did have his hands on her luscious body, and while her behavior was innocent, his certainly was not. Lusting for Violet is not the same as wanting her as his wife, but there is no way out of this scrape without ruining her, and this he will not do. She is insisting on their reading The Book of Love together. Well, why not? Braydens marry for love. Can this book lead them to love before he is recalled to duty hunting down pirates along the Cornwall coast? Read for FREE with Kindle Unlimited! Mystery of the 26 Blinds Dec 21 2021 It is not always the untruth that binds and blinds you, but sometimes the flash of truth is also blinding, if not balanced by the Venetian blinds of wisdom. Did the constant hurts and pains sans any alleviation or amelioration perpetrate a crime or did the pleasure of crime bring forth hurt and pain? Has the pain of the body rewarded the pleasure of the mind? How does an investigative frame of mind perceive when a mental victim, a physical victim and a suspect-on-the-run appear in the same photo frame? As all blinds, from A to Z, roll and shed light on the shady faces, the dispenser of justice shows up. Does Binita recognize the victim and the victor? A creepy, crawly journey through the maze of relatives, friends and foes.
